"We are very excited about having our Landon-Gonzaga lacrosse game broadcast live this Spring. Our games the past decade have been very competitive, and last spring's game was one of the most exciting contests that I have ever been involved with. The atmosphere was electric, and both teams put forth heroic effort. I suspect that this year's game will be another classic, and we are pleased that Lax Sports Network will allow an even larger audience to enjoy this wonderful matchup" said Rob Bordley, Lacrosse Head Coach at Landon School.

LSN has teamed with Synthesis Multimedia Productions, a Mid-Atlantic-based video production and broadcast company, as the lead production team for these prep school games. "We are excited about the partnership with The Lax Sports Network," said B.J. Koubaroulis, CEO at Synthesis Multimedia Productions. "It's no secret that the Mid-Atlantic is fertile ground for developing the best high school lacrosse players in the world. Our state of the art broadcast technology is going to give lacrosse fans around the world an opportunity to watch these brand name programs and the nation's top recruits in a television-style viewing experience that is often unheard of at the high school sports level."

"St. Stephen's & St. Agnes is honored to be a part of the game schedule put together by LSN for this spring. We are very humbled to have been chosen and are privileged with the opportunity to represent our school, conference and the state of Virginia." said Andy Taibl, Lacrosse Head Coach at St. Stephen's & St. Agnes School. This will no doubt be a wonderful experience for all the schools involved but more importantly for the kids and for the sport of lacrosse at the high school level. Our program has had the pleasure of working with BJ Koubaroulis and his company before and it was a great experience so we are very excited about this next upcoming opportunity."
